Geneva, Nov. 7.—No speculation in materials which are necessary on the League of Nations front will be allowed by the German government today in an official communication to the League of Nations Committee. This means that Germany, though not a member of the League, will not allow any action which will deter the aims for peace on the African front.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Despite the recent victories which the Republican party has gained in some of the elections in the Eastern states, the Democrats have drawn a big lead in the gubernatorial elections in Kentucky. Latest returns showed A. B. Chandler, present Democratic Lieutenant-Governor, to be leading over his Republican opponent.

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—It has been pointed out in government circles that the Right Honourable Mackenzie King will have to assure President Roosevelt of the fact that the Imperial Conference Pacts of 1922 do not preclude the granting of important concessions to foreign powers. Mr. King will attempt to get an increase in the trade between the U.S. and Canada.

Reverend D. Munn To Address S.C.M.

Phonograph Recordings Will Illustrate Lecture on Music

The fortnightly Open House at Strathcona Hall this Sunday, November 10 at 8 o'clock will have as guest speaker Rev. Dan Munn, B.D. Mr. Munn is well-known on the campus for his work in the interests of music appreciation, and he will speak on this occasion, on the topic, "The Cultural Values in Music."

As a means of illustrating his lecture Mr. Munn has chosen the following program of recordings: Ninth Symphony (Last Movement) Beethoven
March of the Slav Tchaikovsky
Finlandia Sibelius

These selections will be discussed during the talk.
The purpose of the Open House, as outlined by the S.C.M. committee in charge, is to furnish an after-choir social hour, and as a means for students, especially those from out-of-town points, to become acquainted. For this reason it is made as informal as possible. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of Mr. Munn's talk.

Mining Group Will Meet Next Tuesday

The Mining and Metallurgical Society will meet next Tuesday, November 12, at 5:15 p.m. in the Chemistry Building. At this meeting an illustrated lecture will be delivered by Professor Evans of the Chemistry Department, the subject dealing with British Columbia.

House Approves Sanctions Against Aggressor Nations

Mock Parliament Supports Application of Sanctions, Either Military or Economic Motion Carried by Overwhelming Majority in Mock House of Parliament

THAT the League of Nations must be supported in submitting Italy or any other aggressor state to such sanctions, economic or military, as it sees fit, was the decision of the Mock Parliament which sat in the Union Ballroom last evening. The session carried the resolution that "this House approves of the application of economic and military sanctions by the League of Nations against an aggressor state" by a majority of 55 to 17.

Neil Morrison, Prime Minister of the Government, opened the discussion with a formal definition of the topic in question. "Sanctions," he said, "of the economic type, may be divided into four groups—embargo on war supplies, boycott of exports of the country under the sanctions, refusal to supply said country with goods other than war supplies, and financial pressure. Since the third of these forms implies military blockade, it should therefore be used only as a last resort. However, even this measure need not necessarily lead to war, since the mere threat of a firm union of nations usually suffices to halt an aggressor. In any case, the main point at issue would be the preservation of the League even more than the matter of sanctions. This Parliament must do all in its power to uphold the League, because at present that body is the only power which is preventing a European war. More than that, it is the world's greatest hope for a world court such as will be necessary if we are ever to have an amicable relationship between nations. Therefore, this House must support the application of sanctions in order that the League of Nations should not in any way be weakened."

Opposition's Stand
Mel Davidson, leader of the Opposition, then addressed the House, stressing the point that the enforcement of sanctions in itself suggested war and was on that account undesirable to his party. "Prime Minister Baldwin," he went on, "has said that England will not enforce sanctions without the sympathy of both United States and Germany. However, she is very unlikely to get this sympathy since these countries export great quantities of oil and coal to Italy, whereas England exports very little of these products to that country. Moreover it cannot be to Canada's advantage to support sanctions which, if

Series Of Lectures On Biology Planned

"Biology and Changing World" Forms Topic of Various Addresses

STUDENTS TO SPEAK

DESIGNED to help students to relate the biological sciences to impending social changes, a lecture series entitled "Biology and Changing World" will be given by the Biology Society during the following session," announced Louis Johnson, president of the Society, following its first meeting held Tuesday. This is one of the phases of the society's activities. Some of McGill's authorities on the subject have agreed to address the students, on the biological approach to changing social structures.

This series, which will be held on Tuesday evenings, is to be opened on November 12, by Dr. D. L. Thomson, speaking on "The Nature and Origin of Life." Following this introduction, the course of evolution as shown by changes in the complexity of organization of structural, mental and social activities will be portrayed. The lecture series will continue till the end of March. "The Nature and Origin of Life," by Dr. D. L. Thomson, November 12; "The Ancestry of Man," by Mr. V. C. Wynne-Edwards, November 26; "The Emergence of Man," by Professor T. H. Clark, December 10; "The Evolutionary Course of Mental Activity," by Professor John Tait, January 21; "The Human Mind," by Dr. D. Slight, February 4; "The Course of Social Change," by Professor E. C. Hughes, February 18; "Biology, Ethics and Social Organization," by Rev. Lawrence Clare, March 3; "Some Biological Problems in the Maintenance of Civilization," by Professor C. L. Huskins, March 17.

A concluding lecture is planned, but the title and speaker have not as yet been announced. The president stresses the importance of students attending the complete series in order to understand the relation between the various manifestations of vital processes and in order to appreciate the background of social structure and forces. These lectures will be held on alternate Tuesday evenings at 8:15 in room 250 of the Biology Building.

Alternating with the above addresses and held in the afternoon are meetings devoted primarily to papers and discussions presented by students. An emphasis is being made this year to encourage participation largely by undergraduate students. The subjects of the papers are topics of biological interest chosen by the speakers and taking the form of reviews of books or articles, or addresses on various phases of Biology. Many students will thus be able to present papers and discussions at each meeting. Those who wish to present papers or call the attention of the society to recent work are asked to communicate with the president, Louis Johnson.

Lloyd G. Reynolds Book "The British Immigrant" Appears

Former McGill Graduate Student Publishes Volume on Canadian Immigration

STUDIES AT HARVARD
Doctors Carl A. Dawson and C. Leonard Marsh Edit New Work

SECOND in the joint series projected by the social science departments at McGill, "The British Immigrant: His Economic and Social Adjustment in Canada" by Lloyd G. Reynolds, M.A., has just appeared from the publishers of the Oxford University Press (Toronto). The author was formerly Social Research Assistant at McGill, working in the Department of Sociology. Joint editors of the work are Professors C. A. Dawson and Leonard C. Marsh. Professor Dawson, Chairman of the Department of Sociology, has written the introduction to this most recent publication in Social Science.

In two respects, the author states, this treatment of immigration from the sociological point of view makes a fresh contribution to the study of the subject as it relates to Canada. The sociologist studies "migration as a social process, and the migrant as a part of the total community situation." The study therefore covers not only the character and causes of British immigration to Canada in historical perspective, and its effect on the expansion of settlement on the frontier, but, in successive sections, "The occupational and residential segregation of British immigrants in Montreal"; "The adjustment experience of British immigrant groups"; and "The maladjusted immigrant."

Beginning of Series
The first book published in this new Social Research Series, which is one of the products of the program started on the basis of a five-year grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, was "Employment Research," by Leonard C. Marsh, Director of the general project, program and of the problem of employment in its many aspects forecast the publication of some seven or eight volumes incorporating the results of the various studies.

"The British Immigrant" is the first of these to appear. Others in preparation, Professor Marsh revealed last night, are "Occupational Abilities: A Study of Unemployed Men," "Employment in the Railways," "Employment in the Port," and "The Legal Status of the Wage Earner," all of which are well on the way to completion. Two others are projected, one on "Unemployment in Western Canada," the other "New Canadians: the Economic and Social Adjustment of Immigrants."

Chemical Engineers Found New Chapter

Branch of American Institute of Chemical Engineers Formed

The first Canadian Student Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, was officially formed yesterday, November 6th, in the Ochemists' Building. Last year a number of students sent in a petition to the Institute and after consideration, permission was granted to form such a Chapter at McGill. The activities of the Chapter include visits to important industrial plants and talks by prominent members of the Institute.

Dr. J. B. Phillips has been instrumental in organizing the chapter and has been appointed by the Institute as Counsellor for the McGill Chapter. All students, whether undergraduates or graduates, interested in Chemical Engineering are invited to join the chapter. There are very few obligations and the chapters enjoy many of the privileges of the parent organization.

One of the objects of the Institute is the promotion of sound methods of chemical engineering, the recognition and advancement of the profession of chemical engineering. At the meeting yesterday an election of officers was held and the activities of the chapter outlined to the sixty students present.

DAS LANDHAUS AN DER HEER-STRASSE
By von Kotzebue

Balthasar's master is enamoured by Netchen's mistress, but, in order to marry her, this country house on the highway must be secured to round out the property of her father. The day before that on which the play opens Balthasar, provided with 1,000 thalers, came to purchase the rest of his days in his arbour, in peace and quiet, watching the world go by. He is well pleased with his purchase and refuses Balthasar's offer to buy it from him even though he offers 1,000 thalers' profit.

Then Balthasar and the sly Netchen put their heads together and plan to make Lorch's life so miserable that he will finally be glad to get rid of his Landhaus. To this end Netchen and Balthasar, in various disguises, provide constant disturbances. Netchen in the guise of a talkative and flirtatious neighbour, as a washerwoman, as an expectant mother, as a French chambermaid, comes to disturb his peace. Balthasar, as a beggar comes to sing outside his arbour, as a recruit he is sent to practise drumming, as a sergeant he announces the billeting of the troops in this house and as a courier the arrival of his masters for the hunting-season. In short, life has become impossible for Herr von Lorch. His supposedly peaceful retreat has turned into Bedlam, and with joy he finally takes a loss of 1,000 thalers in the sale of the house to Balthasar, who with the cunning Netchen rejoices at his victory and makes plans for their own future, when they shall be able to buy a similar fine house for themselves.

DIE FRAUENFRAGE

Fare by Josef Stener

"Freie Bahn" is a club of young FEMALES whose purpose is to maintain their independence against man, to hold him up to ridicule and show him up for the monster he really is—marrying poor young girls and thereby robbing them of their independence and personality. All join, albeit somewhat feebly, in the motto of the Club "Krieg dem Manne" (War to Man); that is, all except the scornful and skeptical Lilli, sister of the President, who is being primed for membership when once she shows herself worthy of such honor.

Saturday Night Club Sponsors Symposium

Scott Nearing and Norman Thomas Will Devise Defeat of Fascism

PROMINENT SPEAKERS

HOW CAN WE defeat Fascism?

This will form the subject for the symposium to be held by Scott Nearing and Norman Thomas at the Windsor Hotel on Tuesday evening, November 12, at 8:30 P.M., under the auspices of the Saturday Night Club. Scott Nearing is a former Professor of Economics at the University of Chicago, whose radical opinions have caused him to be ejected from the University. He spoke last year at the meeting of the McGill League against War and Fascism. One of the leaders of intellectual communist thought in the world, he has written several books on war, Fascism, and sociology, and pamphlets on the communist ideology. Recently he has risen to prominence as a speaker and lecturer.

Norman Thomas leads the Socialist party in America. He ran for President on the Socialist ticket in 1932 and 1932.

The symposium will be in the form of a controversial debate. It will probably reduce down to points for and against the Communist and Socialist parties, delivered by their respective supporters. Nearing will present the Communist solution for Fascism. Thomas the Socialist remedy.

Tickets may be obtained at Burton's Bookstore, 1004 St. Catherine St. West, at the price of one dollar.

McGill Head Elected To L.C.C. Board

According to a recent announcement, Principal A. E. Morgan was elected to the Board of Governors of Lower Canada College. This was a position formerly occupied by the late Sir Arthur Currie, Principal Morgan's predecessor.

Sir Arthur and the late Eugene Lafleur, K.C., were among the first non-Old Boy governors to be appointed to the governing board in 1925. Sir Arthur served in this position until his death in 1933. Thus the association between McGill and Lower Canada College will not be lost.

Scenery For First Production Designed

Tentative Cast Selected For "Crime at Blossoms"

Scenery designs for the new Players' Club production are now complete. Stirling Ferguson, the new scenery manager, with the assistance of Max Roth, designer of the sets in major productions for the last two years, has produced an ensemble which, the executive expects, will go a long way towards putting "Crime at Blossoms" above even last year's productions in the annals of the Players' Club.

Casting has been proceeding for the last two days in the clubroom under the direction of Florence Sadler, of the Montreal Repertory Theatre. A tentative cast has been selected, which will rehearse tomorrow, but the final results will not be announced until Monday.

Classes in make-up have started their routine, and other branches of instruction are under way, in addition to the practical work being done by inexperienced members of the club, who are assisting in the preparations for the coming Workshop production.

Student Questionnaire

THIS week, as the world is considering plans for the celebration of an armistice seventeen years ago, the force of war is again threatening to strike mankind. Never before since the cessation of the World War has the international situation been so tense. Today, as in the past, the youth of the land would be called into the ranks of fighting men. Youth the world over has declared its united opposition to this merciless and futile means of settling international disputes.

Today McGill students are afforded the opportunity of making known their determination to live in a land at peace. Every student should make this determination evident by answering the questionnaire drawn up by the Executive Committee of the forthcoming McGill Student Peace Conference. The casting of a response to the questionnaire is more than a privilege; it is a duty which every student should seriously consider. For the results of this questionnaire to be significant it is imperative that EVERY student respond to the call.

Study the questions to be found on the front page of today's Daily. Mark your ballot and deposit it NOW in the poll situated either in the Arts Building, the Engineering Building or the Medical Building. The results depend on you!

The Question of Parking

SOME time ago we campaigned in these columns for a lifting of the present stringent parking regulations on McGill grounds with a view to seeing the undergraduate student being given some rights along these lines. Our article appeared in print over three weeks ago and yet in the elapsed three weeks no appreciable effort seems to have been taken to pave the way for student privileges.

Consequently we feel that the student car owners on the Campus should take concerted action and so indicate that they are actively interested in obtaining their rights. If a very small number of students operate cars there is no reason why the unused parking space on the Campus should not be given over to them without causing any real congestion. If a large number of students operate cars there is even more reason for a movement being started on their behalf.

But how many students are car owners, and how many would be making use of parking facilities, if such facilities could be obtained from the proper authorities? It is only if these facts are determined that a real effort can be made to see what can be done on behalf of those concerned. It is in order to facilitate some amicable settlement of the whole affair that the Daily will, early next week, operate a questionnaire for the purpose of determining how many student car owners there are on the campus, and during what hours they would require parking accommodation for their cars, in the event of the present regulations being lifted.

The results of this questionnaire, of course, will be in no way official nor have the authorities in charge intimidated officially that anything definite can be done. We feel however that the initiative should come from the interested students and that some definite constructive approach can be made to the whole matter if we are in a position to show figures which will show that the feeling amongst the student car owners is very definitely in favour of student parking privileges.

RUMOR: ITS THEORY AND TECHNIQUE, by Stephen Leacock, Dodd Mead & Company, New York, 1935. 268 pps.

It is our firm conviction that this book ought not to be reviewed—at least not in the usual manner. Dr. Leacock's HUMOR is like a fine painting, it delights the careful observer, it loses charm if reproduced. The only purpose a review may serve in this case is as a guide, directing the reader to a fine book and one which ought not to be overlooked. This reviewer does not make a habit of using superlatives—suffice to say that this book ranks with the author's best.

The best guide to Dr. Leacock's book is Dr. Leacock himself—the author and his public both realize this—hence we shall in the course of this review, quote voluminously. HUMOR is brilliant. To use a somewhat strained analogy, it is like ginger-ale, there is not much body to it but it has a delightful sparkle and leaves one feeling most refreshed.

The author starts out in the accepted and time-worn scientific manner—he analyses humor to decide whether or not it may be implanted in the minds of the serious. Can humor be taught if we should wish to teach it? Shall we at some future date find in our advancement—examined magazines, testimonials such as the following?

"Gentlemen:
I desire to express my appreciation of the effect that your Course No. 6 (Six Weeks Course in Applied Humor) has had upon my mother-in-law. Before taking the course her disposition was of a melancholy if not morose character. Now she keeps us in fits at meal times. Please give her another six weeks."
P.S. What would it cost to send her abroad for a two year postgraduate course?"

From analysis the author proceeds to particulars, dealing with each type of humor in turn, as he arbitrarily makes his divisions; humorous himself as he does so. He first treats of that humor which bases itself on a play on words. In this class fall puns—the type of humor at which we groan when we hear it from another while we secretly wish we had been clever enough to think of it first. For example:

"Will you lend me your Uster?"
"I Connaught. I will never be a Leinster."
"What a Munsterous pun!"

Another remarkably fine portion of the book deals with Parody and Burlesque. The section entitled "The Uncle From America" is an unusually clear example of the serious vein which underlies most of Dr. Leacock's works, sometimes obviously and sometimes not so obviously.

Dr. Leacock in being humorous, seldom really clown. It is the opinion of the reviewer that he is to be classed as a "continuator" of those reformers of society, Mark Twain and Charles Dickens. But read the book for yourself! Humor is at least a contentious subject. Especially at a University in the corridors of which the author of this book is habitually seen, a critical estimate becomes exceedingly difficult. If we wished to be unnecessarily critical we might point out that the book lags in a spot or two, but we won't. The author has a keen alert perspective of his subject, and to this his well-known wit and we have HUMOR.

The final chapter is in itself a masterpiece. The following section struck the reviewer as being most amusing as well as unusually keen. The author is discussing obstructions in the path of the humorist—one of the greatest of these, he points out, is the "sex-stuff" of our day—he proceeds to trace the rise and present day position of this annoying incursion. But let him speak for himself.

It may very likely be that the outbreak of sex-obsession came as one of the unforeseen by-products of the emancipation of women. In the old Victorian days... they were given a sort of general commission as angels, furies, grandmothers and such. They never got out without a chaperon and a book of rules. It wasn't quite as complete as the Turkish system but it was nearly as good.

... Then things began to change... It is hard to say how things began... Embodiment, let us say, put a girl's face on the outside of a magazine instead of the good old Latin Mottos and pictures of the Capitol at Washington that used to be there. Now the girl's face has spread everywhere. In any magazine stand you will see a Council approved of this new appointment and for the remainder of the season the Managing Board will be complete with three members.

Erratum

IN yesterday's Daily the Principal was reported to have said "The Present Government grant to McGill is $600,000" in his speech to the Women's Alumnae Association in the Royal Victoria College on Tuesday evening. The Daily wishes to point out that this was an error and that Mr. Morgan really said that the grant of the present Governors (of McGill) to the University was $150,000 for four years, totalling a sum of $600,000.

The Daily wishes to take this opportunity of apologizing to Mr. Morgan for this inaccuracy.

THE PLATONIC LEGEND, by Warner Fite. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 331 pp.

PROFESSOR WARNER FITE, who occupies the Stuart chair of Ethics at Princeton University, has much to say about Plato that will shock all the disciples, blind and otherwise, of the great Greek thinker, and he says it precisely and decisively, with an easy, breezy style that tends to hurl the undergraduate acquaintance of Plato into a surprised but not reluctant assent. The more advanced student, however, will be puzzled and even pained by the thorough job of debunking which the author does upon his legendary subject, especially if he has studied under the tenets of the classical idealistic school, exemplified by Jowett, Taylor and Shorey, and which flourished here at McGill.

Some of the author's criticism is obviously valid. He claims for one thing, that Plato was overly fond of toying with the idea of classifying and even controlling human emotions and human values according to certain fixed, unchanging, everlasting laws, "Laid up in the heavens" and discoverable to man through reason. That is true. The clarity and depth of Plato's genius caused him to dwell, too much, according to mortal men, on the intriguing possibility of resolving all problems of human conduct after the manner of simple mathematical deductions. But to infer from that, as Professor Fite does, that Plato's point of view was utterly devoid of the "personal," that "there is no evolution in Plato's thought, and not a glimmer of the idea of progress," that "all of his thinking is cast in the mould, today called 'static,' of the eternal and immutable," reads pretty much like over-deduction on behalf of a pet theory.

Certainly it is hardly fair to translate the flavour and impart the true significance of Professor Fite's book by reference to quotations divorced from the rest of the text. But that is precisely what he himself does to Plato. True, his references are more liberal (in number) but they do suggest picking away at a general philosophy in favour of some preconceived notion. Moreover, in one case, that of his proof of Plato's absolute unconcern for the education of anyone but the guardians, he calls into question the translation, from the Greek, of Taylor, inferring that the latter's idealistic version implies Plato's concern for mass-education, whereas the original Greek called for an interpretation less favourable to the master. Which leaves this vastly important question in the air, with none but the student of Greek, and possibly not even he, any the wiser.

Apart from their validity, however, Professor Fite's criticisms are extremely interesting and provocative. A brief summary of some of them is all we have space for. Among other things, he undertakes to show that Plato was an aristocratic dabbler in society and politics without any regard for or knowledge of so-called masses, that his system of morals was merely a utilitarian curb on appetite, that love for him, personally, meant nothing more than the cult of pederasty, or boy-love, and that his reputation as a consummate literary artist is merely an illusion of his idealistic interpreters.

Provoking questions, these, and regardless, as we have intimated, of the truth of his answers, Professor Fite is a clear, entertaining thinker who deserves attention from the student interested in philosophy. Out-and-out worshippers of Plato, of course will scurry to their texts, probably without thanking him for the incentive.

Oraculum Olympi

IT is now some time already yet, children, that we have been being enlightened on one general case, i.e. and to wit, the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, with a learned treatise on the League of Nations thrown in free. I think it is about time I changed the subject and told you all about Something Else. But we must bear in mind, mustn't we, dears, the fact that all Events in the International Sphere are inextricably interrelated and that while we may select and isolate one particular Subject (Object) for analysis and dissection, its ramifications and connections are legion, and that the effects and causes of all International Phenomena are, to put it briefly, mixed.

What we want, you know, is a Peaceful subject. I have it! Scandinavia! The Very Thing!... (You know, it would be rather fun to stop here, and let anyone still interested in Scandinavia... there must be some... look up Denmark, Norway and Sweden in the Enc. Britt., but they would probably dock my salary if I did that. Probably).

Scandinavia, as all know, is at present composed of three separate and distinct countries, the above mentioned Sweden, Norway and Denmark (though some will add Finland). They have not always been separate. As recently as 1905 the pre-existing union of Norway and Sweden was dissolved. Similarly Denmark and Sweden were at one time united with Norway separate. Strange to say, Sweden was once alone while Denmark and Norway were united. And believe or no, all three of them have been at one time united. I think that just about exhausts the possibilities!

The Scandinavian countries provide an outstanding example of the working out of democracy under a constitutional monarchy. They have been singularly free from internal troubles, though this is possible due also to the fact that most of the Restless and Disturbing Elements of the populace left about 800 A.D. They are now the most civilized (I use the word advisedly) of all the nations of Western European civilizations. They are very likely also the most prosperous (Sweden has the lowest unemployment rate in the world by a long shot) and they are progressive in their outlook and ideals.

But there is one outstanding feature about Norway, Sweden, and Denmark which this class as students of international affairs should be interested in, and that is the fact that they are independent and untrammelled by any foreign links and at the same time have practically no military, naval, or air forces.

Why should this be so? No one seems to have found a satisfactory answer. The countries are prosperous, and should therefore be an object for the cupid and avarice of expansionist powers; they are undefended and should therefore fall an easy prey to any well-organized military power. Why don't they? Why are they independent? Well, why?

Having got this far, if you could call it "far," the audience is doubtless restlessly asking itself why they have been handed out the above information. The answer is that the implications of the Scandinavian situation might quite easily be applied to numerous other countries. This will be left to the class for homework.

To fill in time until the bell rings I think I shall discourse a little on the natural beauties and features of S.D. and N. Denmark first. This is the one that juts up (Jutland) from the top of Germany, thereby preventing those who may want to sail in a straight line from the North Sea to the Baltic from doing so. Most of it is built on islands on the right (as you look at the map). There is an abundance of wealth, such as bacon, and some ruins, e.g., Elsinore (see Hamlet, passing).

Sweden is the right bulge of the big double sausage that flows S.W. by S. from Finland and the Arctic Ocean. The Swedes eat smorgasbord. They also have fun. Their king is a top-notch tennis-player at the age of 77.

Norway is the left or outer bulge. It has fascinating place-names, such as Trondhjem, Hammerfest (midnight sun), Hell (no sun), etc. (This is the home of the fjord. Other motor-cars are extensively used.

Dear Sir:

Although I have never had any desire to see my feeble literary efforts in your publication, I would be much obliged if you would print these few words of explanation to your reading public concerning athletic matters at the university that have lately been subject to some criticism.

Since attending this university, which covers quite a number of years off and on, I have always participated in several intramural sports, and although certainly not proficient in any of them, have enjoyed these recreations and benefited by the exercise. From my experience I am forced to condemn the sentiments as expressed by your correspondent "Patience Taxed" as being unfounded and uncalculated. For this criticism was not accompanied by the writer's name proves that his statements were not matters of undebatable fact. Speaking of student sports in the days of Dr. Tait MacKenzie may I point out several things that I know to be facts as I have personally heard them from men who were students at that time. First of all there was then an athletic fee of $3 which was comparatively equivalent to our present fee owing to the very low cost of living, and for which the student received exactly nothing. If he wanted to participate in any of the 4 or 5 sports then sanctioned by the university he was further called upon to pay the dues required by the football club, or track club etc., as the case might be. The gymnasium he speaks of, was not as big as the front hall in the Union and practically unequipped. The only playing field available was the Campus grounds. And remember that the registration at the university was as large as that of the male student body today.

At present the average student has a choice of eleven sports in which he can get plenty of exercise and recreation from the opening of the fall term, and with the exception of one that confines activities to intercollegiate competition, there is an opportunity for the casual athlete as well as members of the senior team. There are now provided, 3 playing fields, a swimming pool, the M.H.S. gym, a space in the Field house bigger than Dr. MacKenzie's gym, and 6 tennis courts complete with locker rooms and showers. As I see it the main reason that interest is apparently lacking in

Frosh Gridders Gain Intermediate College Championship

Defeat Bishop's, 15-1 In Sparkling Display

Kerrmen Bring McGill First Football Championship in Many Years — McConnell Stars — Scores Two Touchdowns in Last-quarter Splurge — Half-time Score 2-1 — Squad May Advance to Intercollegiate Playdowns

DOUG KERR'S freshman football team brought McGill its first football championship in many years, yesterday afternoon, when it ran roughshod over the Bishop's University squad to score a sparkling 15-1 in the final game of the Intermediate Intercollegiate League. The two teams were tied for first place before the game, so McGill automatically became champions of the league as a result of their victory.

McConnell Stars

Led by as fine a backfield as has been seen in these parts in many a year, the Freshmen were always a step ahead of the Lennoxville team on the play, and only the desire to make sure of single points in the early parts of the game kept the score as low as it was. After leading 2-1 at the half way mark, and 3-1 at the three quarters, the Freshmen turned on all their forces in the final session and scored two converted touchdowns. McConnell, whose work was a feature the whole afternoon, scored the first of these when he ran back a kick 55 yards through the whole Bishop's team. He also scored the second, on a six yard plunge across the line after Merrifield had intercepted a Bishop's forward and had put the Reds in a position to score.

Though the score in the first half was close McGill was decidedly the superior team. Bishop's opened the scoring soon after the start of the game, when after intercepting a forward pass a Bishop's man advanced the ball 40 yards and put Dunsmore in position to kick a touch-in-goal. McGill then put on the pressure and advanced the ball for yards three times in succession, once by Hamilton, once by McConnell, and the third time by Telford.

Bishop's Avert Score

Bishop's took the ball, on a kick and, after two unsuccessful plunges, booted to McConnell, who made his first long run of the game, a 45 yard dash to the Bishop's 40 yard line. McGill then made yards twice in succession, and Hamilton booted across the line, but when the Bishop's receiver was given no yards, the play was called back to the 15 yard line and Bishop's was given the ball, without a score. This was just a temporary setback, however, as Bishop's kicked short, and then McGill made yards twice in succession, once on a plunge by Telford and once on a nice cut-back by Hamilton. The Reds were in position for a major score, but, rather than gamble for the points, they took the wisest alternative, and Hamilton booted a single point from 15 yards out. Neville was hurt on the play and went off for a rest.

When McGill got the ball again they started off where they had left off, and McConnell went around the end for 20 yards. Again in a position to gamble, the McGill men, who have profited by the errors of the seniors, called for another kick, and Hamilton promptly booted to the deadline to give McGill a 2-1 lead as the half whistle blew.

McGill Advances

In the second half the Red attacks really got going. McConnell ran back the kickoff 50 yards to past centre field, and from here Hamilton booted a long lofty spiral that travelled all of 60 yards as it made its way to the deadline for the third McGill point. The Red advance was temporarily halted when two Bishop's forward passes were completed. The ball was kicked to the McGill end of the field, and the march began again.

Donnelly plunged for a first down, and then McConnell made it two in succession with another 10 yard thrust. Donnelly got another 8 yards, and McConnell made sure of the gain by going around the end for 25. On a fake kick Christie went through the line for a first down, and McGill was in a position to score. They fumbled, however, and Johnson of Bishop's recovered to relieve the pressure. At the end of the quarter Christie went for yards again on a McGill plunge.

McConnell Runs 55 Yards
At the start of the final period, Neville knocked down a forward pass. Bishop's kicked, and McConnell ran the kick back 20 yards. Offside play cost the Reds yards, and then Bishop's took possession and completed a forward. They kicked from their 25 yard line to McConnell at centre field, and the fast moving half back side stepped his way through a maze of tackles and crossed the line standing up after a brilliant run of 55 yards. Hamilton converted from placement.

This was just the impetus the Reds needed. An onside kick by Bishop's was blocked, and McGill recovered. A quick kick forced the Purple and White to their own end of the field, where Merrifield intercepted a forward pass. Hamilton went around the end for 20 yards, and McConnell went

Badminton Club Secures Armoury For '35-'36 Season

Playing Hours Daily at Black Watch Armouries

Playing hours will be from 5 to 7 o'clock week days, except Saturday, and at an as yet undetermined time on Sunday. Rates will be $12 for the season, including the cost of birds.

The Club is making plans to hold matches with outside clubs during the season. It also possesses two cups, which are awarded to the winners of singles and doubles championships. Play will start immediately. All those wishing to join will kindly communicate by telephone with Harry Lead CR. 1926, or John Mainwaring, MA. 4418.

Freshmen Attend Managers' Meeting

More Competes Needed by Board — Meet Today

There will be a meeting for freshmen in the music room of the McGill Union at 5 o'clock this afternoon. This meeting is for any freshmen who have not yet been to a previous managerial meeting this year, and who desire to become part of the managerial system of McGill.

Freshmen in their first year are competing, meaning that they are assigned to different athletic teams during the college year. They act as assistants to the managers of these teams. In their second year they become assistant managers of one of the teams, and in their third year they become regular managers. In the fourth year, the managers move up to the managerial board.

Today's meeting is an important one for all Freshmen who were not at the first meeting of the board a few weeks ago. In the managerial system freshmen have a splendid opportunity to learn about the different college teams, and to learn about the inner workings of athletics at McGill.

Senior Polo Squad Ties Maisonneuve After Hard Battle

Shragovitch Scores Tying Goal in Last Second of Play

MAY PROTEST GAME

MCGILL Senior Poloists breasted the crest of a strong Maisonneuve attack to eke out a 6-6 tie in a hectic game at the Maisonneuve Pool last night. The Maisonneuve Mermen milled and tossed the Redmen about the pool to the rabid roaring of a particular crowd. The game was rough, crammed with action, filled with excitement, and enlivened with protests.

McGill Starts Strong

McGill entered the pool defending the deep end. Play started fast and Pete Bourne, getting close in, passed Maxwell in the Maisonneuve nets to set the game off with a bang. This tally started the Maisonneuve squad on a rampage. They besieged the deep-end and made Chuck Wayland's life miserable. Wayland made some sensational saves and had the crowd gasping. However, a clever pass from Neasmith to Hogue drew him out of position and Hogue scored to tie the game. The audience went wild with cheering, but their spirits were soon dampened by a ripping shot from Munroe Bourne which the Maisonneuve guardian hardly saw.

A barrage of fast shots finally netted Maisonneuve a tying tally with Neasmith putting it in. Play lagged for a spell, going from end to end of the pool. Finally a stiff scrimmage in front of the Maisonneuve goal with Elliot, Munroe Bourne and Shragovitch keeping Maxwell busy. Finally Shragovitch popped the ball past the goalie to put the Red team in the lead once more. The break had been against Maisonneuve, Comartin having been sent off a bit before for having roughed it up too much. Comartin came back and preserved the balance of power till the period ended. McGill still leading 3-2.

Maisonneuve Take Lead

The second period opened with Maisonneuve holding the deep-end. Axford replaced Hogue for the home team this period. A fast and furious attack brought the slippery ball down to the shallow end and a sly back-hand shot by Neasmith slipped by Wayland to place Maisonneuve back

New Interfaculty Game To Be Organized Today

Intended Merely to Supplement Present Game — Will Not Replace Rugby Football League — Plans by Interfaculty Managers — Little Equipment Necessary — Set of Rules Suggested by Major Forbes — Organization Meetings in Each Faculty to be Held Today

IN answer to the protests received regarding interfaculty football as at present played at McGill, the Athletic Board has taken steps to organize a touch-football league, after the example of many American universities. The plans for the game are outlined in the following statement made by Alex. H. Tait, intra-mural football manager.

Statement by Manager

"Due to an apparent desire on the part of some students to start a touch-football league here, as expressed in the Daily and by rumour, the Athletic Board decided to try and organize a few games this fall in order to get some interest in the game and to establish an agreeable set of rules. To this end the Interfaculty Managers met today in the office of Mr. Van Wagner, who has consented to help in drawing up rules of play and to officials at a few games.

"It being uncertain whether a sufficient number of students would participate in order to make it worth while to draw up an elimination schedule, the faculty managers are calling a meeting this afternoon (Thursday) in each faculty, and a man from each faculty will be chosen to meet with Mr. Van Wagner between 5 and 5:30 o'clock to discuss the rules and schedule.

Little Equipment Necessary

"This is a game in which everyone, all being novices at the sport, can take part. It takes little equipment and there is no danger of serious accident. It is quite commonly played in interfaculty and interfraternity leagues at U. S. colleges. In fact, a maximum of exercise and fun with a minimum of individual perfection (no experience being required) are the features. It is hoped that all those at all interested in the possibilities of this fall sport will prove that it can be organized at McGill by turning out to their faculty meeting today, especially those who have had any experience in this game as played in 'sand-lot' contests.

"As proposed now the schedule will be two games for each team and a play-off. If necessary, some games may be played at the Stadium under the lights. It is hoped that a start may be made by a doubleheader on Monday, if the would-be players agree."

Merely Supplements Rugby

It is emphasized, however, by the Athletic Board that the new game is designed merely to supplement Canadian men, so the Maisonneuve team dropped one of theirs.

The line-ups:

McGill	Maisonneuve
Wayland	goal
Shragovitch	def.
Shapiro	for.
Elliot	for.
M. Bourne	centre
A. Bourne	half
Referee: Roy Ashworth
Time-keeper: Paul Goyette

With only a few minutes to go McGill pressed on and annoyed the Maisonneuve net-minder, finally enticing him partially out of the way. A shot, seemingly sent by Shragovitch, was half stopped, but dribbled into the open goal-mouth. The goal-umpire, in his excitement, waved the flag signifying a goal, however, later claimed that he didn't mean it and that a goal was really not scored. The squabble seemed settled when the referee ruled that a goal had been scored, but the Maisonneuve team may protest the game officially. However, the whole thing nearly didn't matter when Neasmith came through to score his third goal of the night for Maisonneuve. With little over a minute to go this seemed to settle the issue, the score standing 6-5.

Score with a Second to Go
The Redmen seemed sunk beneath the depths. Spirit waned and the game was about finished. Suddenly Shragovitch, starting from the defence, swam up the side of the pool. Nobody interfered with him and he sent a terrific shot into the corner. The score was 6-6. The crowd was in the depth of despair, but Shrag was in agony. That last effort cramped his leg painfully. However, with exactly a second to go, he remained in the pool.

dian rugby football as at present being played in the interfaculty league, and that the latter league will continue to operate.

The following rules for touch-football have been suggested by Major Forbes, with a minimum of changes from ordinary Canadian rugby rules:
1. Canadian rugby except as follows:
2. Teams to consist of ten men, five on the line of scrimmage, not spaced greater than arm stretch until ball is snapped, for defence as well as offence.
3. No bucks through the line, that is, seven yards each side of the ball.
4. A tackle is made by touching the ball-carrier with both hands, from standing position.

5. Blocking permitted in standing position only.
6. The penalty for running after being touched is ten yards, that is, for running unnecessarily.
7. A forward pass does not have to cross the line of scrimmage, but other Canadian forward pass rules govern.
8. Running interference permitted behind line and up to three yards as in rugby, but no clipping.
9. Two twenty-minute halves with a five-minute interval, and unlimited substitution.

through centre for another 10. One more plunge brought the ball to the five yard line, from where McConnell went over for his second touch. Hamilton again converted from placement.

Final Score 15-1

Not satisfied with this, McGill started a drive again. Tabah plunged for yards, and then Merrifield advanced the ball 40 yards on an end run play. He appeared to have a touchdown at his finger tips but passed the ball to a Bishop's man. The original play was called offside, however, so the ball was brought back to centre field, where the play had started. Neville was injured again and was helped off the field. Bishop's completed another pass, just as the final whistle blew, leaving McGill the winners by a 15-1 score and intermediate intercollegiate champions.

After the game, congratulations were the order all round. The team forgot their weariness and bruises in their exuberance and flocked to the dressing room, cheering as they went. Their first move was to put "Bert," their trainer, in the showers, clothes and all. They had the same intentions on Coaches Cloghessy and Kerr, but these two men escaped the hands of the players. Now the team awaits the decision of the Athletic Board, as to whether it advances in intercollegiate play or not. The men are all keen to continue, and if they do, they will go far, as they have one of the smartest teams seen in these parts in many years.

The teams: McGill: Christie, McConnell, Merrifield, Telfer, Hamilton, Neville, Donnelly, Bartram, Tabah, Keeler, Dodd, Davies, Gibb, German, Perowne, Bowden.

Bishop's: Martin, Bilkey, McMahon, Russ, Dunshore, Frederick, Purdey, Penton, Smith, Powell, Johnson, Oar-sports at McGill is the fault of the students themselves. How many men turn out for track or barrier for instance? At the U. of T. last year over 100 men took part in the harrier trials. And here it is almost impossible to get a full team to play inter-faculty soccer. B. W. & P. training starts early in the fall and is far from well supported.

Concerning interfaculty football, of which some may hold me responsible for the alleged mismanagement, the players refuse to co-operate in an arrangement for equipment to their mutual benefit. In the past the different faculties have all had their own trunks in which they kept sufficient equipment for their teams. This year due to losses of the last few seasons, all the teams, with the exception of Engineering, were without proper equipment. I brought enough things to completely supply at least two teams down to the tennis court locker rooms from the field house, and told the team managers that it would have to be a general pool and to return everything after a game. Within a week the players had picked out things they wanted and taken them to their homes and fraternities with the result that when someone else wanted to play there was nothing left. The Athletic Board is perfectly willing to provide the equipment necessary if it is certain that it can be properly and safely taken care of. To further that end we are now endeavouring to get better organization and more responsible management of all intramural sports, with the work involved being equally shared. Among the accidents that have occurred there has not been a broken shoulder at any rate as was incorrectly reported. After all it is the job of the team manager to see that his men do not play when not adequately equipped.

Thanking you for so much space, and hoping to see more student interest in intramural sports in future.

Yours truly,
ALEX. H. TAIT.

The Editor

Dear Sir: May I be accorded the opportunity of directing your attention and that of your staff to an error in Thursday's Sherbrooke and Ontario streets. Play- The principal headline stated that "Anti-War students organize peace confab, mock parliament." This is not correct as most patently the anti-war students or better the executive committee of the peace conference has had nothing to do with the decision of the debating union.

Thanking you for the cooperation you have extended to us throughout our activities to date.

Yours truly,
MELBOURNE A. DOIG,
President, Debating Union.

House Approves Sanctions Against Aggressor Nations

ever, should have been enforced at least ten months ago, since at present Italy is supplied with armaments which would last her for six months—probably long enough to subdue Ethiopia.

The Prime Minister's colleague, Helen McMaster, then took the floor. In the course of her argument she tried to bring out the fact that for the good of the world it is necessary that all countries should have a chance for gradual change. The League, she stated, was the logical and best adapted organization to favour this gradual and constructive change. For this reason it must be supported in all its decisions.

Ivor Williams spoke for the Opposition side, declaring that such decisions as the League did come to could not be supported successfully since only France and Britain wield any real influence in a case of this sort, and these are already huge colonial powers, so that they have no right to interfere where Italy is imitating their former policies.

Government Supports League

Among the other speakers for the Government party were Juanita de Shields, winner of the Reford Challenge Trophy, who insisted that Canada support the League in preventing Italy's aggression of Ethiopia on the grounds that the conflict might develop into a race war, with the consequent rise of all Africa against white rule. Bud Drury, also speaking for the government, pictured the League as a body still in its infancy but struggling with great courage against the restrictions put upon it to see that right should triumph. His idea was that the League should first apply only financial sanctions, but that if these failed, should go on to sterner methods, even to the extent of using force against the aggressor.

Edmond Gordon, upholding the Opposition's side of the argument, said that Canada should not take any part in an affair to which she is no way a party. Jack Wigdor, also speaking for the Opposition, deprecated the attitude taken by the government in trying to "Make the world safe for the League," an attitude which he thought a false and useless one. Morton Godline said that the powers are not exercising their influence justly in preventing Italy from expanding that their attitude is imperialistic rather than humanitarian. Still another the Foreign Immigrant in an Urban Community."

Lloyd Reynolds, author of the latest publication of this series, is a graduate of the University of Alberta. During three years as research assistant at McGill, he took his M.A. in Sociology, and prepared the present volume for publication. He was president of the McGill Labour Club. He is now in his second year of study at Harvard, where he is working in the field of Agricultural Economics. Much of the data upon which the book is based was collected by two other research assistants, Mary Davidson, M.A., and Mary Ramsden, M.A.

That the saturation point has been reached as far as mass immigration to Canada is concerned, and that neither agricultural settlers, skilled or unskilled workers, or farm labourers should be encouraged henceforth to come to Canada, are conclusions drawn by Professor Dawson in his introduction. If further immigration becomes advisable, however, British migrants should have the preference.

Empire Unity Will Change

The introduction points out the effect of these conclusions on the direction in which imperial unity must evolve in the future. "Imperial unity from this time forward will come to depend increasingly on a regional division of labour and a community of interest on the part of the constituent nationalities which comprise the empire. . . . This new situation will make for greater social and economic stability in Canada."

Evaluating the contribution which L. G. Reynolds' study makes to sociological science, Professor Dawson observes: "Human migration is a complex process involving a series of far-reaching effects on the lives of Opposition speaker, Bernard Orr, advanced the possibility that if Canada should declare herself the enemy of all aggressor states she might some day be called upon to support sanctions against England, a terrible thought. Miss Tancer, one of the last speakers, expressed the opinion that a movement of such importance should not be decided upon by a Parliament at all, but by the word of the masses. The Speaker of the House was Mel Doig.

Bishop Carrington Speaks At Service

This Sunday's Chapel service in Divinity Hall will take the form of a Student Peace Service, with Dean Carrington, Bishop of Quebec, as guest speaker. The Student Christian Movement is this year sponsoring a series of fortnightly worship services designated for and conducted by students.

Right Rev. Philip Carrington D.D. is a graduate of Cambridge University, and was consecrated Bishop of Quebec last July. He has always shown a particular interest in the activities of students and young people. Greatly interested in the drama, he directed the student group of Shakespeare productions last year at Bishop's University. It is planned to have several students take part in the service, which the committee in charge expects will serve as a suitable culmination to the Student Peace Conference.
